FIND OUT MORE ABOUT THE AEWC PROGRAM

What is AEWC and how does it work?

AEWC is an independent study program that provides dropouts with an alternative way to earn a high school diploma. Students are assigned courses and coursework based on transcript evaluation and demonstrated competencies. Students are responsible for meeting with teachers and completing required course work. Students complete the majority of their coursework independently and have access to the AEWC study centers when they need assistance. Work is submitted as scheduled by the teacher. Students must make adequate academic progress to remain in the program.

What do people say about AEWC?

"I was a 10th grader with no credits and no motivation to be in school. AEWC gave me the incentive to work hard. Now I am a college student, working part-time at two law offices and attending an internship at Pepperdine University. Thanks to AEWC and its staff, I'm on the road to a successful future."

Monica, student

"There is more communication between teachers and students in AEWC. I feel that they really care about me."

Byron, student

"When I first came to AEWC I was suspicious and had a horrible attitude. AEWC has taught me to trust others and myself. The teachers are always there to support me and remind me about the importance of graduating."

Ruben, student

"Studying here has made me realize that I can be a successful person, and I can do anything that I want."

Natalia, student

"AEWC is giving me another chance to become a better person. Right now my life is going well. Now, I'm going to school and I have a job. I'm really thankful for AEWC."

Joel, student

"The AEWC program gave my child the motivation and personal attention he needed to be successful in school!"

Program Overview

Alternative Education and Work Center (AEWC) is a dropout recovery program administered by the Division of Adult and Career Education (DACE) of LAUSD. AEWC students are 16-18 year old teens who have dropped out of school. AEWC provides these students with educational opportunities leading to a high school diploma or equivalency and career technical education training programs.

Program Benefits

- AEWC study centers operate on a client-centered basis with individualized educational and career technical training plans.
- The AEWC program offers competency and standards based curriculum and courses that meet the A-G requirements.
- The mode of instruction in AEWC is independent study. Independent study is a voluntary alternative to regular classroom instruction and is consistent with the school district's curriculum and course of study.
- Independent study provides flexible scheduling which allows students to acquire employability skills, or to seek or maintain employment, or care for children or family members while earning a high school diploma or its equivalent.
- Teachers are responsible for assuring that competencies in the independent study course work are mastered and that the highest level of educational quality is maintained.
- AEWC students must meet all district and state requirements for graduation including the STAR test (grades 9-11) and the California High School Exit Exam.
- AEWC students successfully transition to college, the military, and employment.

How do I enroll?

Enrollment in the AEWC program is completed at individual study centers. Students interested in the program should contact the study center closest to them for specific details about testing and orientation meetings. Enrollment is taken throughout the year, however, students are enrolled based on available space. The program operates on a year round schedule.
