Innovations High School – The School of the Future

The high school of the future might look something like this. The school day has no beginning and no end. Classes go year-round. Students can learn in a variety of ways, including in traditional classrooms, through digital textbooks, at a community college and/or at a career and technical education center. Teachers and parents can track students' daily work and progress online. Come learn more about this one of a kind high school in Salt Lake City.
